

Internet Aesthetics

Intro to the Internet

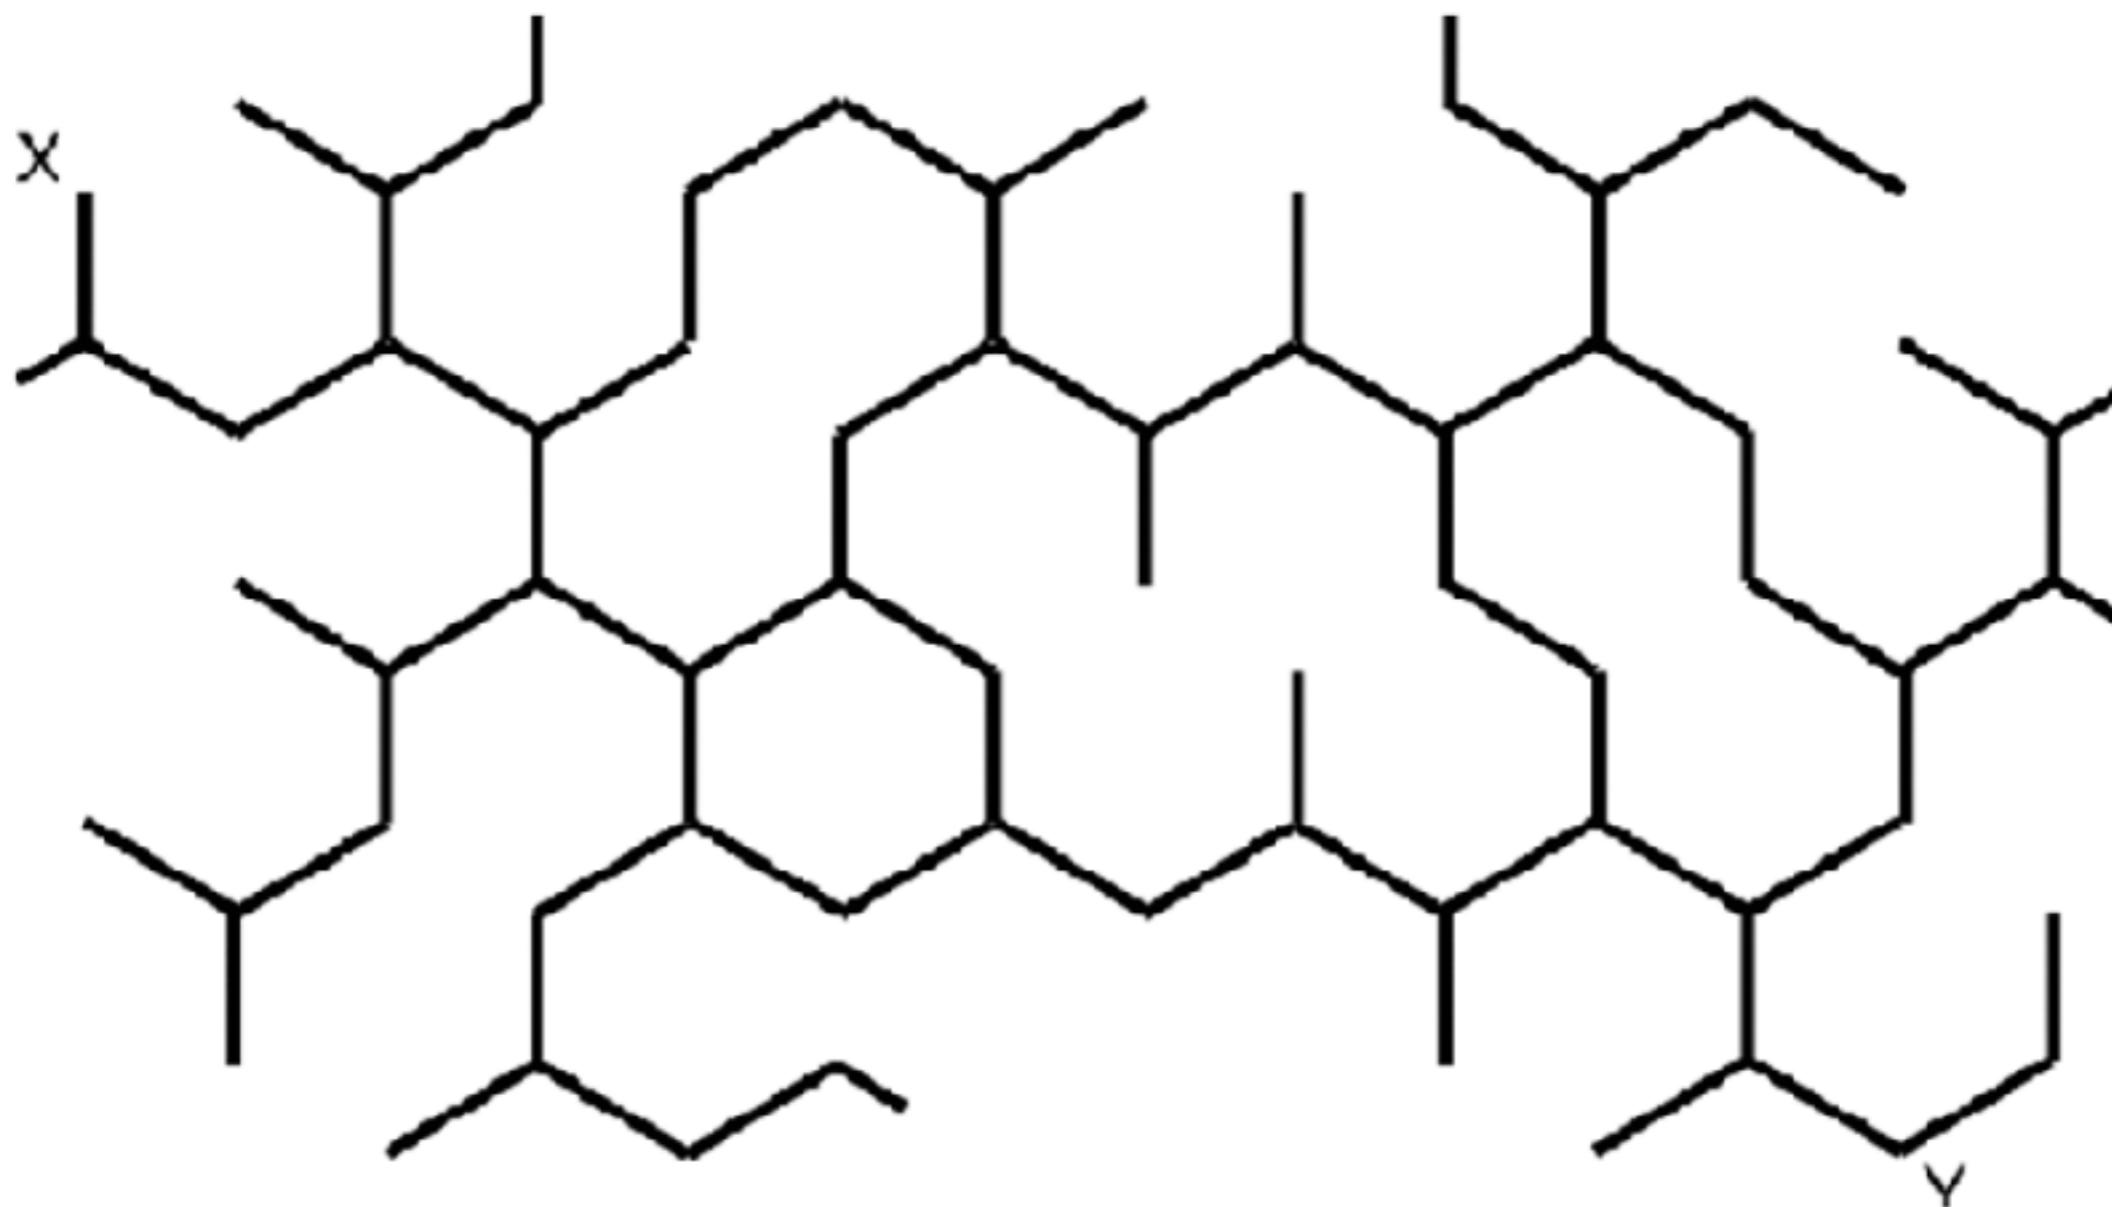

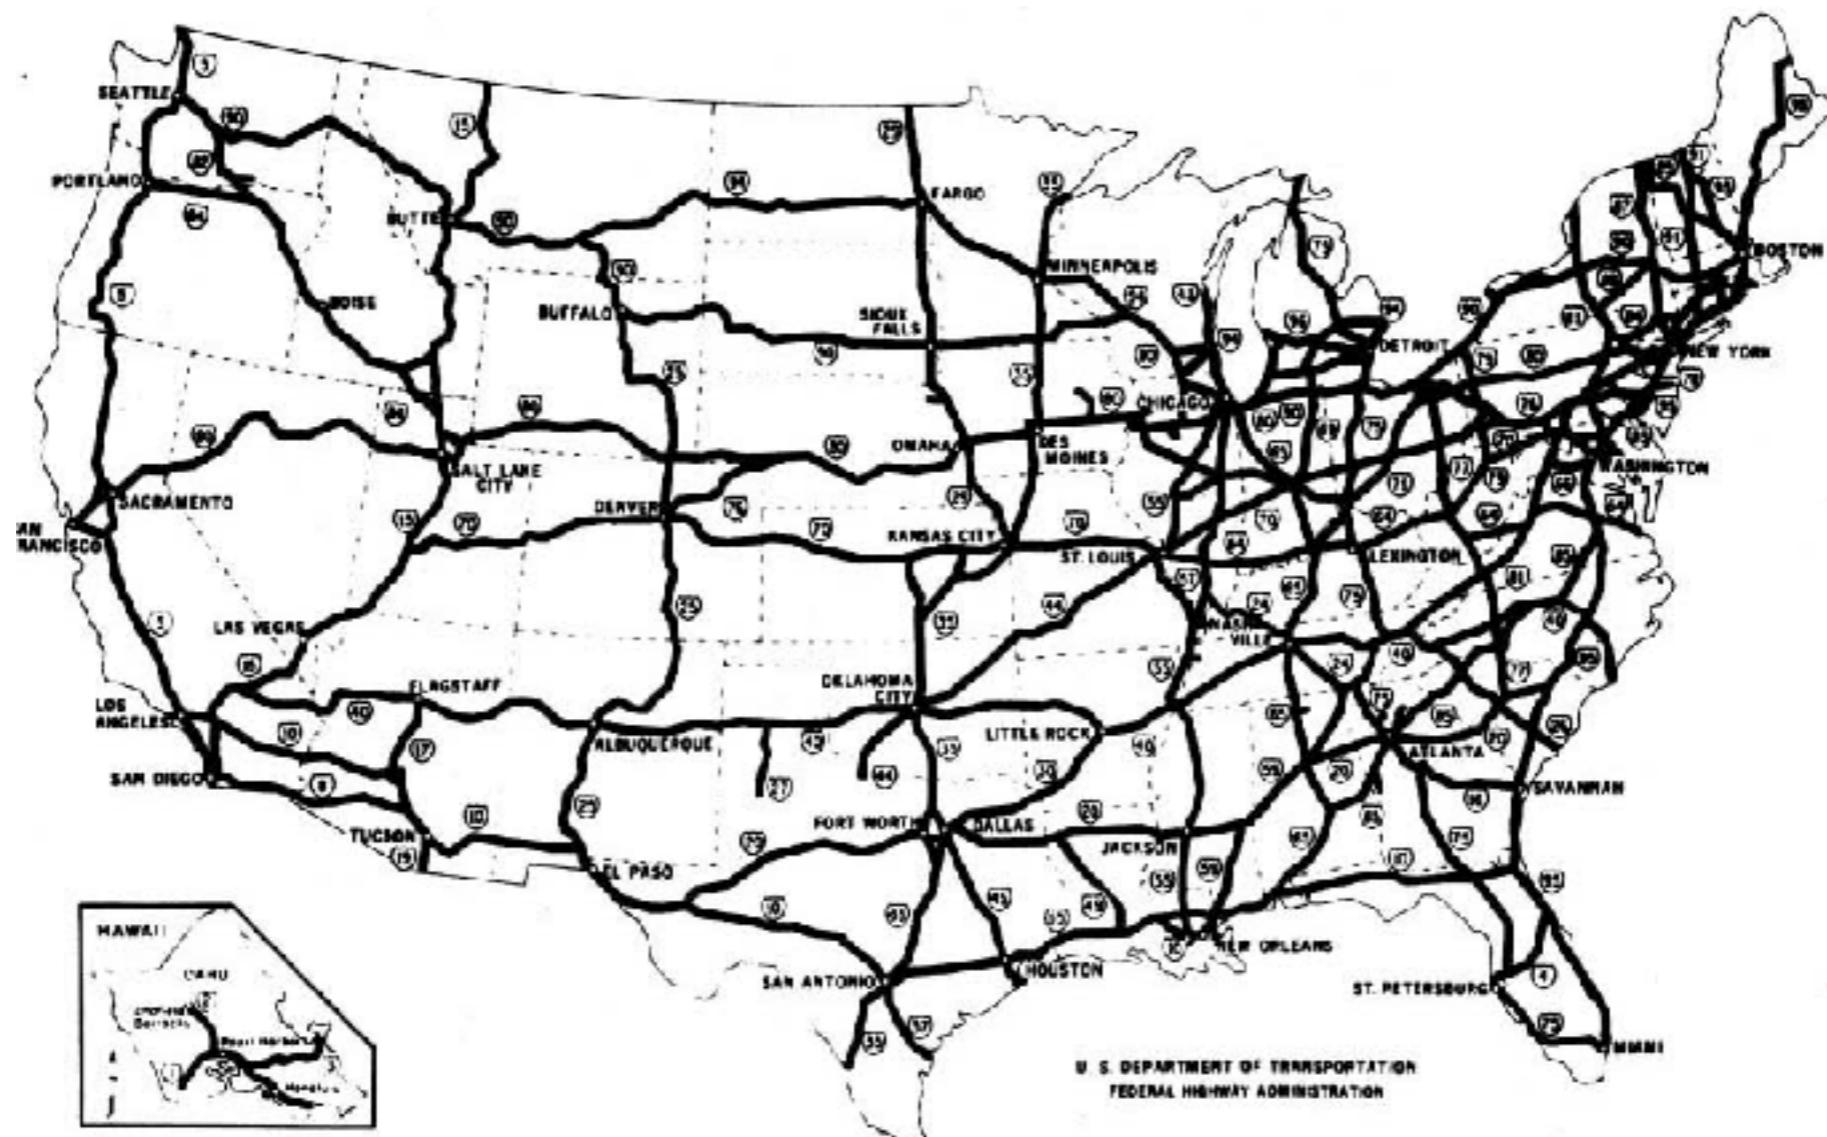

Computers circa 1950

“While many have debated the origins of the Internet, it’s clear that in many ways it was built to withstand nuclear attack. The Net was designed as a solution to the vulnerability of the military’s centralized system of command and control during the late 1950’s and beyond. For, the argument goes, if there are no central command centers, then there can be no central targets and overall damage is reduced.”

Smiths tribute fanzine coming soon

Fabio D'Antonio, editor of the Italian fanzine Speedway, let me know he is working on a special issue titled "There Is A Light That Never Goes Out," to be released in late 1997. The issue is in tribute to the Smiths, on the 10th anniversary of the breakup and will have exclusives / never-before-seen material.

Contributions in the form of articles, photos, memorabilia, and Smiths covers for an included CD are currently being taken. Find out more about this ambitious project at: <http://www.itol.it/menu/musica/thereis.htm>.

*added a new link "Shoplifters Union" which is itself an excellent compilation of Morrissey-related links on the internet.
